CASTINE BANK ROBBERY

Studebaker Car With Flat Tire May Furnish Clue To The Latest Break

Burglars supposed to be the same who have been operating in Eastern Maine, broke into the Castine Agency of the Waldo Trust Co., Thursday morning, breaking the fastening of a rear window. They broke two safes but failed to get to the bills in the interior compartment of the larger safe, obtaining about $250 in silver.

The noise of the explosion was heard about 3:30 a. m., and about that time some Castine young men returning from a dance, came upon a car some two miles outside the village of Castine. The car was halted by a flat tire. It was occupied by two men, one tall and the other short answering clues obtained in other recent robberies. They were believed to be proceeding toward Bangor.

The store and office of Ralph S. Wardwell of Castine, agent for the Waldo Trust company, was also entered Thursday morning but with little damage, which is also covered by insurance. The work is undoubtedly done by a gang traveling in automobiles and the breaks in other parts of Maine, including two branches of the Union Trust company of Ellsworth, seems to be by the same band.

NO INDIAN BONES

Found By Knox County Grave-Diggers, But a Wonderful Appetite Was Developed.

Curator Lermond of Knox Academy organized a grave-digging crew, and by invitation of Mrs. Embree of Nobleboro, visited Wednesday of this week an island, being part of her estate in Duckpuddle Pond, and made a thorough search for the Indian chiefs, or what might be left of them—their implements, paint, etc., which tradition has it were buried on this island, or some other island near here.

The veteran botanist, Jesse A. Tolman, and Irving Tuttle of Rockland went to Warren village by electricity, with a full outfit of spades, shovels, picks, and being joined there by the dog-trainer and taxidermist Niven C. Kallach; the expert Indian grave-digger, H. D. Sawyer, and Curator Lermond. The party motored in Mr. Sawyer's car to Nobleboro and after a short boat trip were soon hard at work digging prospect holes all over the island.

No signs of any Indian graves were found, but in one place Mr. Sawyer after digging down about two feet came to a bed of charcoal, good evidence that the Indians camped and had occasional feasts, if they did not bury their dead chiefs there.

The grave-digging party got up a tremendous appetite if nothing else, and decided, after getting their fill of digging, that a place good enough for Indians to feast in was good enough for them—and without any preliminary war dance fell to on the lunches.

On the return trip to mainland a rich, black, peaty bog was visited, and many fine specimens of plants, mosses, and shrubs were collected for Knox Arboretum.

Mrs. Embree gave the party a cordial reception and some little time was profitably spent in looking over her wonderful oriental collection.

On the way home, in the town of Warren, an Indian grave was opened and a lot of yellow ochre, red paint, one beautiful perfect spear-head and a lot of grain with fiber was obtained. It was a day long to be remembered.

POST HELD IN HAMILTON CASE

"I Suppose They'll Try To Hook Me Up, But I Am Innocent," Says Former Rockland Man Charged With Murder.

Fred L. Post of New London, Conn., a former resident of this city, was held for the October session of the Lincoln County Grand Jury when George W. Singer, recorder of Lincoln County Municipal Court, found probable cause on the charge of murder at a hearing held at Jefferson Thursday afternoon in the matter of the death by shooting of Mrs. Sybil E. Hamilton of Rockland. The prisoner was brought to Rockland and lodged in Knox county jail Thursday night.

The little court room at North Jefferson village, a converted schoolhouse, was packed when Recorder Singer called the court to order at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The prisoner sat on the side of the court, and a little later, beside him Deputy Sheriff Hodgkins; a piano served as the desk of the prosecuting attorney and M. A. Johnson of Rockland, counsel for the defendant, shared a low table with Recorder Singer. The ancient blackboards were covered with scriptural verses, the big oil lamps and wood stove held prominent positions and every one of the possibly 150 non-descript chairs and benches was occupied with many people standing. But in spite of these bizarre surroundings there was a tense hush and serious demeanor on the part of the assemblage.

Counsel for the defense waived reading of the warrant beyond the charge of murder and County Attorney Weston M. Hilton of Damariscotta opened by calling Charles Flanders to the stand, following the prisoner's plea of "Not guilty."

Mr. Flanders proved to be a typical farmer straight from the fields, loquacious but with a clear recollection for detail and a native shrewdness that avoided several carefully prepared pitfalls. Flanders testified to seeing a big red Buick roadster containing a man and a woman pass his place about 3:30, going slowly. About 30 minutes later the man, Post, appeared and said that his companion had been shot. The witness called the sheriff by telephone and then in company with Post and Nathan Flanders went to the scene of the shooting. He found the car 11 feet off the road, which is single track and little traveled. The body of Mrs. Hamilton was lying on the ground close to the rear "right" wheel, covered with a blanket. Upon investigation the witness found no pulse or heart action. In the car, on the seat cushion crevice, he saw an empty shell. He also noticed two holes in the upholstery.

Flanders' testimony as to the story told by Post was received with breathless interest. It ran that following the sound of a shot he (Post) noticed that the car began to "wobble" and that Mrs. Hamilton said "I feel awfully," and collapsed. Post got her out of the car, covered her with the blanket and went for assistance.

Nathan Flanders corroborated the evidence of Charles Flanders and said he was unable to say whether or not Post had been drinking.

Dr. Joseph E. Odiorne of Cooper's Mills, medical examiner for Lincoln County, proved as clean cut in his testimony as in his appearance, his answers being curt and to the point. He testified as to the finding of the body and that a superficial examination of body and clothing revealed three bullet punctures in the right shoulder above the breast; also a puncture wound in the left arm. He produced the heavy brown woolen coat worn by Mrs. Hamilton and showed the holes and dark stains surrounding them which he maintained were made by flame and smoke from a small revolver held at a range of about two inches. He had a lively set-to with Attorney Johnson as to his ability to testify on revolvers and revolver burns, and the Court maintained the doctor's position. He further testified that there were powder burns on the white waist worn by the dead woman.

Deputy Sheriff Hodgkins testified that he had investigated the holes in the car upholstery and located one lead bullet. He also found an empty shell on the car floor near the door.

Mildred Hamilton, aged 12, an adopted daughter of Mrs. Hamilton, said she knew Post had a revolver; that he had brought it into her mother's kitchen; that it was small, flat and black and had "Colt" printed on the outside of the box. She proved a bright and willing witness.

At this point Attorney Hilton announced that the State would rest, Mr. Johnson offered nothing further, and the Court announced the finding of "probable cause" and, as the charge is an unobtainable one, committed the prisoner to Knox County jail to await the action of the Lincoln County Grand Jury which sits Oct. 22.

The inquest was held at the Bond undertaking room and was conducted by Dr. Odiorne assisted by Dr. J. W. Sanborn of Waldoboro. They found that death had resulted from multiple bullet wounds in the breast. The remains were then given in charge of John O. Stevens of Rockland, and taken to the Burpee undertaking rooms, where funeral services were held at 10 this forenoon. The burial will be in Harswell.

"I don't know any more about who killed Mrs. Hamilton than you do," said Fred L. Post to a Courier-Gazette reporter yesterday. In the first statement that he has made for publication since he was held without bail to await the action of the grand jury in Lincoln county.

The prisoner sat in his cell at Knox county jail making a perfunctory attempt to eat his noonday meal. He looked haggard and worn, and years appeared to have been added to his age, but he was far from downcast, and did not even appear to appreciate the gravity of his position.

There was neither hesitation nor reluctance on his part as he discussed the proceedings of the day on which Mrs. Hamilton came to her shocking death. "She wanted to take me out to ride," said Mr. Post, "and after we had started ed she made the remark that she would take me over a road I had never been on. Leaving Rockland about 1:30 p. m., we rode slowly through Warren and over a back road to Jefferson. We were about half a mile from Jefferson village I should think, when the car began to wobble, and Mrs. Hamilton exclaimed: 'I feel awfully funny.'

"I am somewhat hard of hearing, but just before this incident I had heard something that sounded like shots—three or four of them. The car took a turn toward the ditch, and I stopped it by grabbing hold of the emergency brake. Just as the car stopped something whizzed by my face—so close that I felt the wind of it. It may have been a bullet; I don't know.

"The car was tipping slightly on the side occupied by Mrs. Hamilton. She partly rose from her seat and fell over the door. I opened it and laid her on the grass ground. I started for the nearest house to get help. Mr. Flanders and son went back with me, and pronounced her dead."

"Did you have a revolver in your possession?" asked the reporter.

"No; I have not had a revolver for four months. I used to own one—a Colt, and that is the one Mrs. Hamilton's daughter saw at the house. It was on a shelf where anybody could see it, for the weapon was put back on a shelf after I had cleaned the rust off of it."

"Did you see any shells in the automobile after the shooting?"

"No. If there had been a dozen shells in the car I wouldn't have seen them, as excited as I was."

"How long had you known Mrs. Hamilton?"

"Thirty years, I should say."

"Had there been trouble between you?"

"No trouble whatever. I don't remember that there had ever been a cross word."

"What have you to say concerning the report that you wanted to marry Mrs. Hamilton?"

"Only that there is no truth in it. On the other hand she asked me several times if I would marry her. I told her I would not."

"I suppose they will try to hook me up for this if they can, but it isn't right. I am innocent."

There have been wide discrepancies in the statement of Mr. Post's age, ranging from 55 to 72. Mr. Post settled the matter yesterday when he told a Courier-Gazette reporter that he was born Jan. 8, 1855, which makes him not quite 68.

New London despatches credit him with having four wives. Mr. Post says he has been twice married. His first wife was Cassie Jameson, and there was a divorce. Second and present wife, now living in New London, was formerly Margaret Young of Harington.

Mr. Post appeared greatly surprised when informed of her statement that she had not seen him since last Christmas. "That cannot be," said Mr. Post, "for I was home only about two weeks ago."

New London has been Mr. Post's home for 19 years. He had served as chief engineer on all kinds of craft and during the war was on a freight steamship which made several trips to the war zone. Once it was pursued by submarines, but the aircraft which acted as convoy frightened the undersea pirates away. Mr. Post is a member of the Engineers' Benefit Association of New York.

This, he says, is the first time he has ever been in trouble and the first time that a key was ever turned on him.

As an indication of his friendly relations with Mrs. Hamilton he says that he played four or five games of cards with her before they started on the fatal ride. It is said that he had an investment of $800 in her new automobile.

"I am a sufferer from heart trouble," said Mr. Post, "and my doctor has cautioned me against excitement. I even have to be careful how I walk up stairs."

Rockland displayed its interest in the Jefferson hearing by sending a score of cars over. Charles T. Smalley assisted M. A. Johnson in the defense.

County Attorney Weston M. Hilton, who handled the State's case so well, is a striking figure. His manner is most pleasing, and his shrewd questions were always put in a kindly and courteous manner. It seemed evident that he had much evidence in the case which he did not present.

Newspaper men galore were present, including Roy Atkinson of the Boston Post and Sam Conners of the Lewiston Journal. The camera men were hard at it, specializing on the prisoner and little Miss Mildred.

Small acts often show the heart and training of a man. The newspaper men were in the little mortuary chapel when John O. Stevens of Rockland arrived and upon entering the presence of the dead woman, removed his hat. The little group followed suit in shamefaced silence.

Friends of the accused man who talked with him agreed that in conversation and even in appearance he little resembled the Fred Post they knew.

Newspaper men were admitted to the autopsy and discovered Dr. Odiorne to be a skillful and masterly workman. An additional bullet was found in the right shoulder, bringing the total number up to five.

WANTED: MEMBERS

Chamber of Commerce Should Have 250 To Carry Out the Projects In View.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday will see the Chamber of Commerce campaign for the renewal of memberships which expires Nov. 1, 1923. An excellent start has already been made, as the Chamber now has over 100 memberships, signed up for the coming year. The work which has been done by the local organization during the past year, with the funds available, has been very good, and the larger business houses and organizations of Rockland have shown their appreciation of the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce by increasing their memberships substantially.

This year the Chamber is out for 250 members, which is not large for a city of the size and importance of Rockland. A membership of 20 is absolutely necessary if the local Chamber is to carry on the work which it has already started.

First and foremost, the plan for the coming year embraces the promotion of the Kennebec Bridge, and with 250 memberships a fund of at least $1500 can be made available for this most vital project.

The need of an illustrated folder telling about our city is realized. This is one project which must be put through during the coming year. The third big project which must be put through, is the establishment of a camping-ground for tourists.

These are three of the major activities of the Chamber. Of course, there are the usual number of projects which come up during the year, and which the local Chamber takes an active interest in.

In order that the work which this organization is destined to carry on for the citizens of Rockland, can be done, it is absolutely necessary to have enough money to proceed with. The citizens and taxpayers have, during the past year, seen what could be done with a little money, so they can readily realize that if there was more capital to work with a great deal more could be accomplished than has been done in the past. The problem resolves itself into the question of whether a person is interested enough in the community in which he lives, to invest seven cents a day in its future. Many well-to-do people in Rockland should back the one organization which is acting as a clearing house and trying to put Rockland on a plane where it can have more business and better living conditions.

The campaign as laid out for the 16th and 17th shows an organization of seven teams who will make a thorough canvass of the business district, as well as individuals.

Following are the teams which will put over a membership of 250 for the Chamber of Commerce this year:

H. A. Hanscom, captain, W. H. Butler, G. H. Blethen, Harmon Davis, F. W. Farrell.

Charles Berry, captain, Walter C. Ladd, Robert Creighton, G. W. Snow, F. A. Threlk, Jr.

Arthur L. Orne, captain, W. H. Rhodes, H. B. Bird, Louis A. Fickett, R. L. Knowlton.

H. W. Keep, captain, H. P. Blodgett, J. M. Richardson, E. C. Moran, Sr., F. S. Rhodes.

Rev. John M. Ratcliff, captain, A. W. Gregory, Charles M. Kallach, A. F. McAlary, W. O. Fuller, William J. Sullivan.

Charles Emery, captain, E. H. Crie, H. E. Robinson, H. M. Stover, F. C. Dyer, R. U. Collins.

Frank W. Fuller, captain, A. P. Blaisdell, George W. Roberts, C. E. Daniels, E. D. Spear.

Tuesday and Wednesday noons luncheons will be served at the Copper Kettle, at which reports will be heard. At the close of the Wednesday noon luncheon the remaining prospects which have not been canvassed will be turned over to a squad of business men who will "mop up" the district, and get after those who have not already signed up. Indications point to a complete success for the drive.

FISKE HOUSE CLOSÉS

Until Oct. 25, For The Purpose of Repairs—An Annex Will Be Built

John Howard Stevens of Portland is the architect in charge of plans for the remodeling of the Fiske House at Damariscotta, and also for the erection of a new building as a sort of annex to the Fiske which will contain 12 rooms each with bath.

The remodeling, now under way, includes the enlargement of the dining room to twice its former capacity, the erection of a new kitchen, and the addition of several bedrooms.

The Fiske closed Saturday to give opportunity for the making of these repairs, and it is planned to reopen Oct. 25. Meanwhile the Wiscasset Inn is being kept open until November to accommodate the tourists and commercial people who are in the habit of patronizing the Fiske.

The Courier-Gazette will bulletin the World Series returns each day, Sunday included, by half innings. Call as often as you wish.

THOSE EVENING BELLS

Those evening bells! those evening bells! How many a tale their music tells, Of youth, and home, and that sweet time When last I heard their soothing chime! Those joyous hours are past away! And many a heart, that then was gay, Within the tomb now darkly dwells, And heeds no more those evening bells! And so 'twill be when I am gone; That tuneful peal will still ring on, While other hearts shall walk these dells, And sing your praise, sweet evening bells! —Thomas Moore.

VOTE "NO" MONDAY

Our last word is to vote "No" when you go to the polls next Monday to pass upon the merits of the 48-hour law. Under the guise of humanity the advocates of the law are seeking support which is not justified by the hard and fast, practical facts. The debate has been conducted at length and the voters who have chosen to interest themselves in the matter cannot fail to know which system should prevail if the struggling industries of Maine are to cope successfully with the lower waged, and tax exempted South.

A letter received Thursday in Lincoln, Neb., by Secretary of State Pool, from Henry Ford's general secretary, E. G. Liebold, did not reject a petition to make Mr. Ford a candidate of the Progressive party, a special dispatch to the Omaha Herald said. The letter was in reply to a communication from Mr. Pool, notifying Mr. Ford that unless his name was withdrawn, it would be placed on the Nebraska Presidential preference primary.

"Political observers," said the dispatch, "see in Mr. Ford's failure to reject the filing, his silent approval of the Ford boom."

In his letter, Mr. Pool recently sent a copy for the record of the 1922 primary vote in Nebraska and notified Mr. Ford that the petition in his behalf had been found to be legal. Replying Mr. Liebold said that "we are very much interested in knowing the figures recorded from the primary election of 1922."

Nomination of Porter H. Dale as republican candidate for the United States Senate in yesterday's Vermont primaries was termed a "great victory for the friends of national prohibition" by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League. "It is additional evidence," he said, "that prohibition sentiment is not receding, but is succeeding."

The 5th Infantry Band from Fort Williams visited Rockland yesterday and encamped over night on the Children's Playground. Scores of persons were turned away from the Arcade where the band gave a splendid concert in the evening. This organization played before the King and Queen of Belgium, while Overseas, and was awarded a gold plaque. Warrant Officer Kirk Frier was in charge. A dance followed the concert. Early this morning the visitors had folded their tents and motored away—to Belfast and Bangor.

SENATOR SMITH SPOKE

Author of 48-Hour Law
Champions His Measure
Before a Small Audience.

Senator Clyde H. Smith of Skowhegan, author of the 48-hour bill, spoke in Odd Fellows hall last night under the auspices of the Central Labor Union. The Senator is an excellent speaker and very enthusiastic over his measure, but for some reason the lecture did not prove a loadstone, and there were only 38 in the audience.

Senator Smith undertook to refute the statement of the Associated Industries that the 48-hour law would put the textile industries of Maine into unequal competition with the Southern States, and said that the few cotton mills which have moved there as the result of other economic conditions. He also declared that while new mills have been built in Massachusetts, an 8-hour State, none had been built in Maine. "There's nothing to the argument about driving the cotton industries out of Maine," he said.

Senator Smith asserted that in Ohio three-quarters of the industries are working on the 8-hour basis by choice, and that in Connecticut and Rhode Island a majority of the industries are on that basis. In New Hampshire one-half of the industries have the 8-hour rule.

"Not a newspaper in Maine has the courage to tell the truth about this matter," said Senator Smith; "on the contrary they have tried to make you think that Massachusetts is the only State in which they work eight hours. What's good enough for the government is good enough for you men and women."

Senator Smith ridiculed the statement that the 8-hour law would mean a reduction of wages, and declared that the mortality among women in the mills was no greater than that among women not engaged in the industries.

"Every civilized nation except Japan working nine hours was much larger and China and part of the United States has extended the 8-hour law to women," said Senator Smith in conclusion.

I SAW FRED POWERS

at the last football game on the Broadway Athletic Field. To be exact, Frederick W. Powers, of the Armour beef agency, a Bowdoin grad and confessedly a crank on sports. The Twilight League found in him one of its staunchest supporters, and so does football, for the two are kings of outdoor sport. I think Mr. Powers must have been in a football lineup sometime, for between halves he mingled with other festive sports in the informal practice, and booted the ball with professional skill. No shelf for Frederick.—The Sporting Editor.

The World's Series

The clip which Babe Ruth hit during the American League season marked his work in the second game of the World's Series Thursday and the Yankees, aided by his two homers defeated the Giants 4 to 2. In the ninth inning Babe came close to making his third circuit clout, the ball being caught close to the fence by Stengel, the home run hero of the preceding game. There were two other home runs in this game, one by Ward of the Yankees and one by Meusel of the Giants. Four home runs out of six scores—think of that! Penneck pitched the entire game for the Yanks, but Bentley succeeded McQuillan for the Giants. The summary: Yankees 0 1 0 2 1 0 0 0 4—Giants 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 0 2—Two base hits, Bentley, Dugan. Home runs, Ward, E. Meusel, Ruth 2. Double

MRS. GEORGE E. CROSS

The death Thursday afternoon of Mrs. George E. Cross at her home on Fulton street marked the close of a long and useful life—an end hastened by the accident which befell her two weeks ago today when she fell down stairs. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of Justin L. Cross, corner of Main and Holmes streets.

Mrs. Cross was born in Churchill, Md., Oct. 20, 1846. Her maiden name was Frances J. Sparks, and she was the daughter of a planter. She made the acquaintance of Mr. Cross on one of his trips South as cook of a timber cutting crew. After their marriage they lived in Wilmington, Del., Owl's Head and Islesboro, finally settling in Rockland about 45 years ago. This had been their home ever since, with the exception that for a number of winters they had resided with the daughter, Mrs. Fred A. Parker in North Cambridge, Mass.—as they were planning to do this year when an untimely fate intervened.

Mrs. Cross was essentially a home body, and found her greatest happiness in ministering to a family which originally numbered 12 children. Nine of them are now living, and although they are scattered in two States all were present when this devoted mother breathed her last. Mrs. Cross was a member of Pratt Memorial M. E. church. She is survived by her husband, to whose advanced years his death came as a heavy blow; by five sons—L. Leslie, Justin L., George E. and Brook C. of Rockland and Harry of Cambridge; four daughters—Mrs. Kate Coombs of Rockland, Mrs. W. L. Lamson of Newton, Mass., and Mrs. Charles Walsh and Mrs. Fred A. Parker of North Cambridge; four sisters—Mrs. Catherine Irons and Mrs. Isaac B. Dare of Merchantville, N. J., and Mrs. Augusta Sparks and Mrs. Ella Goodman of Wilmington, Del.; and one brother, Walter Sparks of Centerville, Md.

Herbert S. Moon was found this morning lying in a pool of blood at the Spruce street home of relatives with a rifle close at hand. Rushed to a local hospital it was found that the shot had passed through the chest and out of the back at the shoulder. Moon is suffering from loss of blood and shock but will recover.

Just as this paper went to press a telegram was received reading: "New York foggy, threatening weather, looks like rain. Will advise later." So call The Courier-Gazette office for details.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. St. Clair, and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Phillips, left this morning for a trip to North and Maine, and a week at Saul Michaud's Eagle Lake Camps, at Eagle Lake, in the neighborhood of Fort Kent.

Owing to the confusion entailed in the installation of the new organ at the First Baptist church the Sunday Rally Day services will be held in Masonic Temple.

SEARCH CONTINUES

But Mrs. Mary Griffin Still Feels That "John White" Is Her Missing Son Andrew.

"I am more certain than ever that he is my boy Andrew," said Mrs. Mary Griffin when interviewed at her home, 17 Water street last night by a Courier-Gazette reporter. She had reference to the 15-year-old youngster calling himself John White who appeared in her little store last Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Griffin was struck with a certainty at that time that the boy was her child, missing for seven years, and a week's intensive search with resulting newspaper publicity has failed to shake her conviction.

Miss Mary Griffin, a 30-year-old sister, started on a crusade Monday morning to establish the boy's identity. At that time the only clues to his being Andrew were the startling resemblance to the rest of the family, especially Alice, and the fact that he could not account for his years before going to the Portland Reformatory at the age of seven.

The first call of the searcher was made at Portland, where she received valuable assistance from E. H. MacDonald, secretary of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, who put her in touch with the Reformatory authorities and the police. She got the boy's record and questioned to Bangor in search of Alice White who had been listed as the lad's mother.

In Bangor Chief Knaide of the police department took personal interest in the case and found that Miss White, afterward married, had died at the Fairfield Sanatorium some time ago. A brother, Harold White, did recall the birth of a son May 4 or 5, 1908. Residents of Willow street where the Whites had lived, had no recollection of a growing child however.

George Reed, Herbert Reed, and Thomas Crowley, a traffic officer in Bangor, recalled the appearing of a boy of about seven years in September, 1916, the time young Griffin dropped out of sight, and upon being shown a picture of baby Andrew positively identified him as the boy. This boy was sent to the reformatory in December for truancy.

the effect that Miss Griffin was positive that the boy was not Andrew were wrong, according to the emphatic statement of Miss Griffin herself last night. She feels that the youngster who appeared in Bangor in 1916 was her missing brother and the positive identification of the photograph coupled with a complete lack of birth records in Bangor strengthens her belief. Her trip to Bath yesterday brought forth no direct results but did give some corroborating evidence of the missing child. Blood tests are to be made at noon today by Dr. C. D. North and it is expected that this will definitely establish the status of the boy.

The Boston papers have given the story considerable space because the father, Andrew J. Griffin, who died several years ago, was very well known in that city, having had a large livery business and later having charge of the Hotel Somerset stables and garage. At the time of the disappearance Mrs. Griffin moved to Maine and vowed never to leave until her child returned.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

New Roadster

Business men—with whom the roadster has always been very popular—are well pleased with the changes embodied in this model.

Always rugged, the car has been made decidedly trimmer and more comfortable.

This result is obtained by raising the radiator and enlarging the cowl, making a decided improvement in looks and providing more leg room.

A well designed top and slanting windshield do their share toward adding a finished, clean-cut appearance.

Make it a point to see the other new models also on display in our show room.

PARK THEATRE

Charles Ray will be seen for the last time today in "The Girl I Loved." The picture takes on added zest from the fact that it is the personal experience in love of the beloved poet James Whitcomb Riley. The production is based on his poem of the same title which is quoted from many of his compiled works. Tradition has it that when it became known that Riley had written of his own romance, the sensitive poet withdrew it from circulation as far as he could do so. There is also the latest comedy and the Starland Review.

A powerful dramatic photoplay based on a novel of widespread appeal is "The Forgiveness Law," the Metro photoplay which is scheduled for presentation on Monday and Tuesday at the Park Theatre. In its narrative form it aroused heated discussion, leading finally to the recall of a law which worked terrible hardships on womankind. As a photoplay the dramatic emphasis is even more pronounced, and the action picture is one of the strongest attractions of its kind in several seasons.

The title of the photoplay refers to an ancient law, carried on the statutes of many states in this country, which enabled a father to will away his child from its own mother, to provide for its upbringing in whatever manner he himself desired. The cruelty of the separation between mother and child brought about through the operation of this ruthless law is shown in all its tragic possibilities in this motion picture.

A bitter quarrel, caused by the father, himself, has a sudden culmination in the man's mysterious death. Unknown to the wife, the erring man has provided that their child be educated at the home of his brother, who can see nothing but evil in the innocent wife. Persecution of consecutive evildoers successfully unites the separated family, and the surviving brother learns that he has been wrong in his persecution of his brother's widow.

STRAND THEATRE

Action many times multiplied is seen today when Richard Talmadge stars in "Taking Chances." Richard Talmadge's advent into pictures was made through Douglas Fairbanks. Being a great friend and admirer of Doug, Dick engaged in an athletic contest and the most difficult stunts induced Fairbanks to encourage Dick to enter moving pictures. His first super-feature, "Taking Chances," bears out Doug's confidence in this star. You will be treated to a thrill a minute and witness stunts never before attempted on stage or screen.

"The Purple Dawn," booked for Monday and Tuesday is a photoplay of great strength, with Bessie Love playing the lead. When Bob was seen by thieves and beaten senseless, the hand of fate did not deal him a cruel blow. As a friendless orphan he had fallen into the clutches of Red Carson, the wild smuggler, who through beatings had terrified him into obeying the brute's commands. For years one desire had been to escape, and when this opportunity came he was aided by a friend who provided the means for his rehabilitation. But Red Carson's arm was long, and eventually Bob was caught in his web. What his fate was is breathlessly portrayed in "The Purple Dawn," a thrilling drama of San Francisco's famous Chinatown.

Wednesday and Thursday comes that wonderful sea tale "Masters of Men." Dick Halpin is accused of the murder of the brother of Mabel Arthur with whom he is in love. To save Mabel from humiliation Dick accepts the blame, runs and hides along the waterfront. The only one who has faith in him is Bessie Fleming, who is in love with Dick's superior Fleming. No expense has been spared to make realistic the atmosphere of Manhattan wealth and fashion.

Miss Blythe's role is that of the favorite of society—"The Darling of the Rich"—and the picture shows many affairs which she attends like a queen of Manhattan. These affairs are so numerous, while the gorgeous Betty is naturally appeared in gowns which take the eye and hold it long after the picture has been run.

VESSEL NEWS

The steamship Ripogonus owned by the Great Northern Paper Co. is at the Bath Iron Works, Ltd., for minor general repairs, mostly to the hull. The Ripogonus was built at the Cobb yard, Rockland, in 1919 and hails from Belfast and runs mostly out of Seaport to metropolitan ports. She has a gross tonnage of 2278.

The United States Shipping Board is making a renewed effort to dispose of approximately 150 Lake type steamers averaging about 4,100 deadweight tons. They are asking for bids, and the circulars point out that while the ships have been held at $70,000 each fresh bids are called for, it being believed that they will consider offers considerably below those figures. The steamers were built between 1918 and 1921 and are generally regarded as good vessels, for eastern trade and for conversion to Diesel engines, but not economical for overseas traffic. Most of the ships are tied up at New York, Norfolk, Philadelphia, New Orleans and Orange, Texas.

A rather poor demand is reported at present for sailing vessels in the coal carrying trade and quite a number of idle craft are awaiting charter. The five-master, Cora F. Crescy, which arrived in Hampton Roads recently, has been chartered by A. W. Frost & Co., to load coal at Norfolk to Portland at 80 cents.

Steps to effect economies in the operation of the Shipping Board fleet by elimination of duplicate port forces and changes in the managing agency contracts are to be taken shortly by the Board. Chairman Farley says no attempt will be made to introduce the system of running the ships through eighteen subsidiaries, and indicated that the Shipping Board would continue in force operations through managing agents.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hicks entertained very pleasantly Wednesday evening at their beautiful home on Middle street. The guests of honor being Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Green. At 7 o'clock a delicious game and lobster supper was served, covers being laid for 12 guests. The large dining room was a picture in its decorations of bright red autumn foliage, the walls of the room were almost entirely banked with them, and with electric lights twinkling through, the effect was like fairyland. The other decorations took the form of the Halloween season, with a large pumpkin for the centerpiece of the table. It was a jolly crowd in gay paper caps that sat down to the delicious supper. After supper Mr. and Mrs. Green were handed a number of strings, and at the end of each string, hidden in some part of the different rooms, they found nice gifts, including a number of crisp new bills. The other gifts were all useful or ornamental. Mr. and Mrs. Green and family are leaving next week for Houlton. They carry to their new home the love and good wishes of a host of friends.

NOTES ON THE GREAT FESTIVAL

The Courier-Gazette's Musical Critic Among Those Enraptured By Onegin—Great Success Scored.

From the minute I heard Mme. Sigrid Onegin's record of the Brindisi from "Lucia di Lammermoor" I was consumed with a great desire to hear this singer, but felt that the possibility was rather remote. You can imagine my rejoicing when it was announced that she was to be the star of the opening night of the Maine Music Festival, and that I lost no time in making preparations to be "among those present."

Often when we hear a singer lauded so greatly and read such wonderful things about him or her, we are filled with expectations that are sometimes rather dashed when realization takes place. But in the case of Onegin this was not true. Indeed, she proved far more wonderful than could be gathered from her records or press notices and reviews. She is distinctly in a class by herself. Her voice is unique—her personality is individual.

She is a very handsome woman. I had gathered from the pictures we see of her that she would be very, very stout almost what we unpleasantly call "fat"—but she isn't. She is large, to be sure, but beautifully shaped—broad, straight, regal. Her hair is thick and very dark; her skin clear, and her smile most engaging. She conveys to her audience that she is endowed with great vitality—she seems brimming with it; she walks quickly, yet carries herself beautifully; her bows in acknowledgment of the tremendous and very sincere applause that poured on her were quick, energetic, honest, unstudied and impulsive. She appears as if she were just having a lark, as if she were enjoying every minute, and consequently she has an audience that is happy and joyful, even before she commences to sing. She certainly is richly endowed with that elusive thing we call personality, or charm.

At the concert Monday evening she was entrancingly good. A gold lace creation, which must have had an underdress of a rosy shade; from her shoulders nearly to the bottom of her gown fell a shawl of the same gold lace, and the drapery of her skirt was caught just below the left hip with an ornament of light green ostrich feathers and jewels. Her hair was parted, combed low and adorned with silver laurel leaves. She wore many jewels, also rare medals which she has received from the Swedish king and other dignitaries.

How can one adequately describe Mme. Onegin's wonderful voice? It is so distinctively unique that if all the commendable adjectives in the English language were called into play, justice then would not be done. She calls herself a contralto—and in the low reaches of her voice are surely contralto—rich, deep, and full. But all in a minute her voice is soaring heavenward with fully as much ease as she sings low, absolutely without a shade of forcing or straining—rich, broad and colorful. The voice of a mezzo-soprano, yet a shade heavier and richer—a more beautiful voice than a mezzo-soprano voice, it would seem.

She has absolute control of this magnificent voice, she sings pianissimo as it should be sung, she even brings out the most delicate trills—well, she does everything that all sopranos, mezzos and contraltos do, and then some! She is equipped with technique, artistry and rarely expressive style. From the most dramatic moment she can instantly change to a melting tenderness. Her voice will ring with thrilling triumph and then soften to the most appealing sweetness. But please don't imagine that, equipped with this unusual voice, that she attempts to sing things. She sings with the utmost intelligence and her voice at all times under absolute control. She is a musician. Her voice is wonderful in all its range of three octaves, but in the middle register, possibly from E to E, it is simply indescribable—golden, rich, warm, luscious, it pours out in almost unbelievable beauty of tone.

Her first number, aria from "Rienzi" (and she is distinctly a Wagner singer) was magnificently sung. She responded to the deafening applause with the "Brindisi" from "Lucia di Lammermoor" and the delight of the audience was without bounds. Her second appearance on the program was a group of songs in which "Morgen" by Richard Strauss stood out like a rare gem—in tone production which brought in the marvelous beauty of the middle register, and in the beautiful legato work. And it was generally conceded that Schubert's "Erl King" had never been sung so dramatically. She was in turn the father, the child and the wood spirit. It was wonderfully rendered, unusual and satisfying. She received a veritable ovation at this point, and finally responded with two Swedish songs—a shepherd and a lullaby, gems in their presentation. In the shepherd song she enhanced the effect by frequently putting her hand to the side of her mouth, as one does when calling or desiring to be heard at a great distance. She brought the shepherd, calling together his flock before your eyes by this little bit of acting. The lullaby was a tender dreamy bit, sung with velvet smoothness. And her third appearance in the aria from "Samson and Delilah," "My Heart at Thy Dear Voice," which we all love, again brought forth tumultuous applause. It was sung with splendid dramatic feeling, and the climax, from a thrilling high note to a very low one, without a sign of a break, was most wonderful. She graciously responded to an encore, and again and again came back to acknowledge the applause, which showed no sign of abating. Finally, she sang with splendid dramatic feeling, and the climax, from a thrilling high note to a very low one, without a sign of a break, was most wonderful. She graciously responded to an encore, and again and again came back to acknowledge the applause, which showed no sign of abating.

Her singing will long remain a wonderful memory to all those who heard her, and all will long for an opportunity to hear her again. It can be well understood why she is acclaimed as possessing the most beautiful voice before the public today. Maine surely owes a big debt to William Rogers Chapman for bringing her this marvelous singer.

Mme. Onegin sang at the public rehearsal at the Exposition Building Monday morning, as she promised to do. She was warmly received and applauded. While she stood in the wings she was besieged by eager autograph seekers and the dancing girls who were rehearsing for Faust. She singer bestowed a most gracious smile on an elderly man who presented himself to her as a fellow Scandinavian.

"I bring you greetings from our country," she said in excellent English. "It was only three weeks ago that I sang in Stockholm. I sang for the King of Sweden. It was wonderful."

Onegin's speaking voice tells one she must be able to sing. It is beautiful. Her manner is simplicity itself. She is young, energetic and gracious. Mme. Onegin's first husband, a Russian, was killed in the war. She is now married to Dr. Pensold, a Munich physician who was with her in Portland.

It would not be fitting to devote all our time to Onegin, as the entire Festival was most noteworthy from beginning to end—many claim that it is the best yet. The orchestra was exceptionally fine, especially the strings. There was precision of attack, superb unison, fascinating swing and rhythm, and perfect ensemble. Tchaikowsky's overture "1812," the opening number on Monday night was magnificently played, and Wolfe-Perrais' "Intermezzo" was so beautifully done that it had to be repeated.

The chorus was also especially fine. It was a welcome feature to note that there were many younger faces in the chorus than in some of the previous years. Young singers should be encouraged to join the chorus of their local town or city, and in this way become familiar with some of the world's greatest music, in addition to the privilege of hearing some of our most famous artists at a small outlay of money. In this way the proper and intelligent love of music would be instilled.

While it was not my privilege to hear Erwin Nyiregyhazi, the Hungarian pianist, press notices and personal remarks tell us that he was a veritable wizard, surpassing all expectations. After each of his numbers he received tumultuous applause—a real ovation. The Festival Orchestra accompanied the pianist in his first number, Liszt's Concerto in E Flat, and the audience was almost breathless throughout the composition. The execution of the orchestra was faultless, and the work of the soloist magnificent. He later played Schubert's "Erl King" and Liszt's "Second Rhapsody," and his technique and expression were again thoroughly appreciated by the lovers of music assembled to hear him.

The Opera Faust, presented on Wednesday night, surpassed the previous operas, Aida and Carmen. Frances Peralta gave the role of Marguerite not only splendid vocal power, but imbued it with a keen sense of what it dramatically fitting. The other soloists, Arman Tokatyan as Faust, Devora Nadwornek as the boy Siebel and the old nurse Martha, and Tom Williams as Valentin, gave fine interpretations of their roles and met with high favor.

The afternoon matinee was both of the highest order, all the soloists being in fine voice, and the orchestra giving splendid programs.

The artists who are to appear in the Portland Municipal Concerts this season have been announced as follows: Oct. 24, Helen Yorke, soprano, with a flutist; Nov. 8, Katherine Goodson, pianist; Dec. 5, Tandy MacKenzie, tenor; Dec. 20, Rozzi Vardy, cellist; Jan. 3, Joan Manen, violinist; Jan. 24, Marie Sundelius, soprano; Feb. 14, Flanzalez Quartet (string); Feb. 28, Ignaz Friedman, pianist; March 6, Claire Dux, soprano; March 26, Boston Symphony Orchestra. On Oct. 24, Nov. 8, Dec. 5 and Dec. 20, Edwin Lemare, the present municipal organist, will assist in the program.

Even though practically all these artists are familiar to us, it might not be amiss to give a note about each one. Of course, Helen Yorke seems like one of us, being a Maine girl. She has made rapid progress of late, and everywhere she has appeared she has completely captivated her audiences, both by her lovely voice and charming manner. Her plans do not include any singing engagements in Maine but this time, so it will encourage many to make a special effort to hear her on Oct. 24, at the opening concert.

Katherine Goodson, pianist, is one of the most popular artists in Europe, and represents the best of the Leschetizky, having been a pupil of this great master for four years. Shortly after Christmas of this year she returns to England for a tour of forty appearances booked for her in the British Isles.

Tandy MacKenzie, tenor, is said to have one of the most beautiful tenor voices ever heard in this country. From low to high register the voice is complete, rich and gorgeous in color, and the heritage of his Scotch-Hawaiian ancestry. It was John McCormack who first gave him the idea that his vocal ability was quite unusual. Mr. McCormack heard him first at a weekend party at Stamford, Conn., and was greatly astonished when he learned that he was almost without vocal training. Doubtless McCormack's encouragement started him on the way.

Rozzi Vardy, cellist, a young Hungarian, was born in Budapest on March 4, 1900. She has played with remarkable success under the baton of most of the great European conductors, besides receiving renown as a concert artist of extraordinary talent.

Joan Manen, violinist, is at present filling European engagements, and his appearance in the Municipal Concert of Jan. 3, 1924, inaugurates his new season. Manen is of world wide reputation, not only as a violinist, but as a composer as well. He has written several operas and a number of symphonies, and has made transcriptions for the violin from the works of all the famous composers.

Marie Sundelius, soprano, is a charming Swedish-American, a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company. She has had a phenomenally successful career, and is a great favorite.

The Flanzalez Quartette needs no introduction. This quartette has appeared with the greatest success for eighteen consecutive seasons. It has played in over four hundred different cities in America. It is the only organization of the kind well known in Europe and in America. It has made over 1700 appearances in America and over $60 in Europe.

Ignaz Friedman, pianist, has created a sensation in this country wherever he has appeared. He is also a Polish virtuoso.

Claire Dux, soprano, is an irresistible concert artist. Her demeanor is a mixture of verve and simplicity, her toilette sober, yet smart, her delivery severely correct with the sobriety decreed for the platform. Her voice is admirably suited for Lieder, being beyond criticism in quality and expressive-ness.

And what do we need to say about the Boston Symphony Orchestra? Their wonderful performances over all the years bear witness that this concert on March 26 will measure up to all they have done before.

KIDNEY TROUBLE RELIEVED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Began to improve as soon as She took this famous Fruit Medicine

89 North Ashland St., Worcester, Mass.

"For years, I was a sufferer with Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism. Eight years ago, I was laid up for seven months, scarcely able to move hand or foot. My hands were so swollen that they looked as large as loaves of bread.

There was suppression of the kidney secretions and I was in a terrible condition in every way. About this time, "Fruit-a-tives" was brought to my attention. As soon as I began their use, I could see improvement. I was relieved of Constipation and Liver Troubles and have been 100% better of Rheumatism and Kidney Disease."

Mrs. ALBERT A. YOUNG.

"Fruit-a-tives" will relieve all troubles such as Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, chronic Neuralgia and Headaches, Pain in the back and Kidney Irritation, when these troubles are due to non-action of the bowels, as they usually are. "Fruit-a-tives" regulates the bowels, rids the system of waste matter, keeps the blood pure and rich, and in this way, gives prompt and effective relief.

"Fruit-a-tives" are made from fruit juices combined with tonics. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent by FRUIT-A-TIVES LIMITED, OGDENSBURG, N.Y. Ottawa, Can. London, Eng. Christchurch, N.Z.

WITH THE RADIO FANS

(By Maud L. Lation)

Monday night offered about the best receiving conditions for the past two weeks, and long distance work was possible even as early as 9. WSB of Atlanta came in with all its old time "pop" of last winter. The announcer in the same fellow who cheerfully told freezing New England last February that his orchestra was sitting in the studio of WSB in shirt sleeves and with the windows open the musicians were fanning themselves to keep cool. I haven't picked up WSB before since the new wave lengths were put into effect.

A distress call for the radio map went out the other night when I managed to pick up a station with letters KQV broadcasting a little jazz concert. While my partner searched frantically for the elusive map I had visions of Los Angeles, Seattle, Vancouver and several other extreme western points where a station with such a call must surely be located. Imagine the fall I took when the map revealed KQV as a little station in Philadelphia.

Station WMAF of South Dartmouth appears to be off the air. Perhaps some announcement regarding its long stand-by has escaped my attention. Do any of the readers know anything about WMAF? I haven't heard it or seen its programs listed in the papers for some time.

My frantic appeal for information regarding the Canadian station 9CE has yielded many replies from readers of the column but nothing that seemed to support my claim that I heard music from such a station on the evening of Sept. 15. The most logical solution is offered by a Camden reader who thinks I must have misunderstood the announcer to say 9CE when he really said CKCE, Ontario, Canada.

Radio is responsible for the coining of the new word "radio" which means a radio play. Radioros are the latest expression of dramatic art and require special preparation in writing and presentation so that the voice alone will convey to the listening audience what the eyes and ears see and hear in the theatre. The Crosley Radio Weekly published by station WLW of Cincinnati makes the announcement this week that it is offering a cash prize of $25 each month for the best radio story written on the customs of America. Twelve simple rules govern this unique offer and full information may be obtained by writing the Crosley Manufacturing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

J. H. McMahon of Port Clyde who seems to take great interest in the radio column has written me under the date of Oct. 4 and enclosed an admirable list of stations received on his own Westinghouse since July 11. The list totals an even 50 stations, all of which he assures me he has heard more than once since the above date. The most distant station in the United States is that of WFAA the Dallas News of Dallas, Texas. The remainder of his list covering practically every station of importance this side of the Mississippi river is topped off by our old friend station PWX of Havana. Mr. McMahon's list should be an open challenge for a great many of you single tube fans and I shall expect to hear at once from our friend John Cunningham, who now holds the local record. Come on now boys—let's go after some record breaking lists these nice cool evenings.

Ed Sanson's reflex proved to be a revelation to its constructor. "The quietest set I ever made," said Ed. There's many a slip between the cup and the lip.

Probably the most talked of receiving set in Rockland is the one I made for Elmer Davis to take on his vacation which he failed to "receive." Genial Elmer was still hopeful while in the shadow of station WGR of Buffalo so he took the unresponsive box into a radio store and had them look "er over. The efficient radio clerk of the Buffalo store was nearly overcome when he discovered I had used a 200 ohm potentiometer to control the filament current, and he promptly sold Mr. Davis a perfectly good five-ohm DeForest rheostat to control the power little UV 199 tube I had used in the set. Such a rheostat would have made a fairly good "A" battery switch for this tube, and five of them in series might have given about as good filament control as my 200 ohm potentiometer, but I doubt it. I am now using the self same rheostat to control a brace of two of the old UV 201 tubes which it does nicely. This clerk has probably since learned that there is a difference in rheostats corresponding to the difference in tubes, and the rheostat which he sold Mr. Davis to control one UV 199 tube would have taken care of a dozen such tubes much more efficiently than it would one.

The new Crosley receiver, model XJ, is on demonstration at House-Sherman Inc. on the Northend. The Crosley is a very efficient and moderate priced receiver known in radio circles as "The Ford of radio."

Mr. Fickett of the Maine Music Co. has been in Portland for a few days on business. Incidentally he is installing a new Radiola Grand for a customer there.

(Second Installment)

Leaving Bridgewater on a Sunday afternoon with our camping equipment and our heavy freight of beach stones we went to Taunton, which seemed to be a city of stoves and heaters, and thence across the line into Rehoboth, R. I., and then to Providence, the rival of Boston as to wealth and culture, where the Union station, the slightly State Capitol, and the State Normal School are so attractively located near the Woonasquatucket and Moshassuck Rivers.

A little later we crossed over into Connecticut, and while on the road to Danielson we experienced our worst motor trouble, all our brakes played out while we were descending a long and steep hill, but by using our reverse gear and edging into a side hill, we escaped disaster. We effected temporary repairs and went on in search of a garage which we found in Hampton where the brakes were improved but not made all right. While repairs were being made we camped and cooked supper under an apple tree. Going under way the Thread City, the home of spool cotton and silk twist, Williamantic, where we put the faithful car in a garage and spent the night at a hotel.

We were later than usual next morning in getting away, but once clear of the city we found the road good and covered the seven miles to Andover without effort, and then to Bolton and on to Manchester, a manufacturing town where the big industry is making silk and soap. Then westward through Burnside, and East Hartford where some of the finest tobacco is grown and then into Hartford at the head of navigation, 50 miles from the mouth of the Connecticut River. No other city so far inland has such excellent water communication. Here we saw Trinity College. Meeting friends in Hartford we were invited to dinner, and though the urge to go on was strong within us, yet we accepted and came out of our comfortable khaki shirts of our tramp uniform, and dressed more conventionally, but it was worth it as we had a fine dinner. In the afternoon we went through interesting country through West Hartford and Farmington to Plainville where they make carriages, and through Southington, the home of the paperbags of the grocery stores, and through Plainville and Milldale to Waterbury, famous for its watches and clocks. Waterbury on the Naugatuck River where our pins and hooks and eyes come from.

We kept onward through Middlebury and into Tranquility, which is rightly named, and thence to Southbury and to Sandy Hook, but not the Sandy Hook which guards the front door of New York. It being Labor Day, all who were able, and that means a great proportion of the population were on the road in cars of all sorts and makes and descriptions, big and little, and from almost every State in the Union. We saw many cars built over by home talent to accommodate all kinds of equipment, and that the auto-tourist might have his home with him wherever he went. And scattered all along the roadside were tents and booths where food, honey, fruit, farm products, and supplies useful to tourists were offered for sale. We next came to Danbury, which makes hats for all the world, and thence through Ridgefield, Conn., across the State line into South Salem, N. Y. Keeping on we went through Cross River, Bedford and Armonk to White Plains, N. Y., where we spent the night.

In order to avoid as much as possible the congested traffic of New York City, we left White Plains before daylight and went to Yonkers the city of sugar and carpets, and then down through New York, by Columbia University, and finding the streets fairly free in less than an hour we were at Dyckman Street ferry ready to take the first boat across the Hudson River.

In New York City, we soon lost all idea of trying not to exceed any speed limit; the idea was impressed upon us by the traffic officers that we must hustle along whether we wanted to or not. They were constantly yelling to someone, "Step on it, G. O. come on, interest and imagination were stirred by the great city to which all nations have contributed its population, and in which all America has a share in its financial, industrial and commercial magnitude.

As soon as the ferry opened we went aboard and were soon crossing the Hudson and in a few minutes we were arriving from Albany, in a few minutes we landed at the beautiful palisades at Englewood, N. J. We continued our course through Roselle, Hackensack and Passaic to Newark where we found the traffic worse than in New York City, but we attacked our way through it without mishap. A large part of Newark seemed to be devoted to manufacture of cooper. Next we were in Elizabeth, the great coal port, and the home of the sewing machines. Keeping on by way of Plainfield and New Brunswick we came to Princeton and saw its University. Between New Brunswick and Princeton were the trial grounds along the main highway where one might test his automobile brakes.

We found our way on to Pennington and thence to Washington Crossing where Gen. George Washington crossed the Delaware when he went after the Hessians at Trenton. We camped near the historic site and cooked our noonday meal in tramp fashion. We then went on to Lambertville, N. J., and across the Delaware River into Newhope, Penn., the section where they grow great fields of corn. Soon we came to Buckingham, and visited the Quaker cemetery where no massive grave-stones are allowed; where each grave is marked by a simple stone marker. Would that other communities follow the same rule. Buckingham was our objective, and here at the farm of Dr. Washburn we

We tarried several days in Buckingham, Penn., during which we visited the schools where we used to teach together, and renewed old acquaintances. At Farm-School we found the peach orchards which we had had set out some years ago overlaid with the luscious fruit to such an extent that the boughs were breaking down under their loads. Peaches were selling at 75 cents a large basket, and were a drug on the market.

At length we stocked the lazarette hatch of the Ford coupe with provisions, and stowed our camping equipment and set out on an auto-tramp to the capital of the United States. Leaving Buckingham at noon, we went over a fine tarred road to Hatboro which seemed to be a busy borough. Then we went on through Willow Grove, Ogontz and Jenkintown to Philadelphia. Philadelphia is so extensive, and the traffic so dense, that it took us longer to cross the city, from the time that we first saw the statue of William Penn till we had left him far behind, than to go to the next 50 miles in the open. In contradistinction to the traffic officers of New York City, those in Philadelphia were very courteous and glad to answer questions.

Leaving Philadelphia the great manufacturing and commercial city, with its medical schools, its great university and museums, we went on to West Grove and then to Oxford the last town in Pennsylvania, and crossing the line into Conowingo, Md., we saw the traffic laws of the State posted legibly on great billboards for the benefit of all motorists entering the State. The road was perfect and well protected and the scenery very interesting as we kept on through Castleton, the land of green houses, to Bel Air, one of the prettiest places in the State.

In the next town, where I reckon nearly everybody raised tomatoes, we visited a factory and saw tons of tomatoes processed and canned; the process was much better and cleaner than I had thought practical. It was now late in the day and the sun was disappearing so we kept a watch for a place to pass the night. In the South, much more than in New England there are Tourist Camps where the auto-tourists or auto-tramp may stop and pass the night comfortably. Leaving Benson, and going on to Kingsville, we read a large sign telling of the camp for tourists at Gun Powder Park in Fullerton. We reached the park, a small one, and found all the accommodations taken up, but we parked there and soon had cooked a nice hot supper and made acquaintance with many good people from far distant States. We learned of a widow who rented rooms to transients, and arriving at her house in Perry Hall, and showing our credentials, we were supplied with a good room and beds and spent the night there.

Next morning we passed through Perry Hall and Necker to Baltimore, where we saw John Hopkins University and Morgan College. Baltimore has a greater population than almost all the rest of the State combined. From Baltimore we went on to Elkridge and Laurel where we saw the Laurel Health resort, and thence to Muirkirk, Annapolis and Beltsville. Leaving Benson, and going on to Kingsville, we read a large sign telling of the camp for tourists at Gun Powder Park in Fullerton. We reached the park, a small one, and found all the accommodations taken up, but we parked there and soon had cooked a nice hot supper and made acquaintance with many good people from far distant States. We learned of a widow who rented rooms to transients, and arriving at her house in Perry Hall, and showing our credentials, we were supplied with a good room and beds and spent the night there.

Passing Washington Monument we saw several hundred people waiting in line each for his turn to ascend to the top and view the panorama from the windows in the top of the shaft. On Pennsylvania avenue we bought a huge, ripe, watermelon from a darkey at a quarter, and took it with us down town to the foot of 41st street, below the Bureau of Engraving, to the Tourists' Camp on Haines Point on the Potomac River.

Here we paid a 25 cents' registration fee, and were assigned to a large tent with wooden floor, with parking space in the rear for the car, and were accorded use of hot and cold water and shower baths. We hired some cotbeds and a table at 25 cents each, moved in our effects, set up our Kamp-kooker, and were soon ready for house-keeping, with a temporary home established in Washington. After cleaning up, we left our camp and came on down and made duty calls on friends and relatives in the city, and were invited to dinner. We passed the evening with our friends and then returned to our home on the Point. Though adjacent to the right-of-way of the Southern and other railroads where trains are passing almost all night, we seemed more used to it than we were at Wells, Maine, and passed a comfortable night.

The next day, awakened by many aeroplanes and hydroplanes soaring over the campgrounds, we attended to our breakfast and housework in less than half an hour, and visited other campers. Over 600 tourists had passed the night there, and the guardian of the gate told us that almost every State in the Union was represented. Equipment of all sorts and varieties was seen. To tour comfortably with an auto, and to be independent of hotels, and able to stop wherever and whenever the desire manifested itself, one should be provided besides the car with an auto folding tent without campers, a folding camp-bed accommodating two persons, a collapsible card table, plenty of coverings, and of course a proper supply of eatables, cooked and uncooked and a gasoline kampeoker. The whole outfit, food excepted, the cost of which varies with the taste of the individual tourist, can be acquired for about $60. A collapsible pool for carrying water ought to be added to the equipment mentioned.

We spent the day in accomplishing business errands, and in seeing Washington. Besides the Capitol and the White House we visited the Lincoln Memorial in Potomac Park, the U. S. Treasury where they make more money than we ever hope to make, the Corcoran Art Gallery, the Scottish Rite Temple and the National Museum, and in the afternoon enjoyed a lovely ride through the famous Rock Creek Park with its Zoo and the Buffalo which posed for the design on the nickel. In the evening we visited the Library of Congress, the most used library in the world, and admired its inspiring and marvelous interior. Returning to the Tourists' Camp we visited other travel-
